

[inaudible 00:00:00 - 00:25:00]

Karen DeMaria: [inaudible] Make it easier.

Jack Hill: There were lots during the summertime. Why German? What year is it? It really was a new market. Nothing else.

JH: Please come back in. [inaudible]

KD: The driver never had. The reason that – it's a real – do you have a. I'll see you by. Change of the day. Reading. So basically – is there anything up here? Why don't you start doing [inaudible]?

JH: You buy and sell hard. You usually have problems getting kids. All you had. Usually have extra amount of important pieces. [inaudible] since I use it. Presents almost every fishery. Just to be in the comments you'd like. Right. So, stay. Really. Look like monster allegory. [inaudible] Other areas or it's like just a natural sheet flow. You get the water come up. But I would like you to be [inaudible].

KD: God bless them if they got to ninety level [inaudible]. You look at that. Real fast when they talk, the way they dress, when they left, the way they do everything. We've got five miles up the road. It's different. You don't have that accent anywhere else. [inaudible] I look at. Then you go.

[end of transcript]